Grand jury fails to indict Michael Johnson

By Larry Rowell
Editor

A Casey County grand jury refused to indict Michael N. Johnson in the death of Leah Skipper, his live-in girl friend. The grand jury report was issued on Monday. Skipper died from a gunshot wound to the head at Johnson's residence on March 18, 2014 that then Coroner Tommy Clark ruled a suicide, according to a coroner's report.

The grand jury stated in its report that Skipper's family and law enforcement "requested to present to the grand jury information and allegations that there was foul play and/or criminal intent perpetrated by Michael N. Johnson in regard to the death of Margaret Leah Skipper on March 18, 2014."

Called to testify during the grand jury proceedings were Clark, Deputy Freeman Luttrell, Charles Shepherd, Fama Jones, Brian Sears, Chuck Dorman, Sierra Skipper, Savannah Skipper, Forest Turney, Rebecca Monday, Carol Salyers, and James Salyers.

Further, the report states that the grand jury looked at photographs, lab results of testing for gun shot residue, toxicology screening results, sections of Kentucky law pertaining to the coroner's office, and the audio of Johnson's call to E-911 Dispatch the night Skipper died.

"After considering all the evidence presented, the grand jury deliberated and the vote for an indictment against Michael N. Johnson failed due to insufficient evidence for an indictment," the report stated.

Firefighters from Poplar Springs, Evona, Dunnville, and Liberty Fire Departments responded to a house fire Monday afternoon near 5714 South Ky. 501. The house, belonging to John and Mary Schrock, was a total loss.

Two homes destroyed by fire

Two local families lost their homes to fire last week, one of which was engulfed in flames by the time firefighters made it to the scene.

Hamilton Road

Southeast Casey County Fire Chief Larry Harris reported to the scene of a house fire on Hamilton Road Friday afternoon, around 5 p.m.

Harris said although he wasn't sure what damage was done to the basement, the top half of Mark and Debbie Dunham's home was destroyed.

"It was pretty bad," Harris said. "Everything that they were building on the top side of their house was a total loss."

Harris said the Dunhams were inside their home when they noticed the smoke and all of the sudden flames appeared.

"They had their water hoses out and were trying to keep it knocked down until we could get there," Harris said.

Firefighters were unable to pinpoint the exact location of the fire, due to the heat, but Harris said the fire spread quickly through the attic.

"We put about 20,000 gallons of water on that thing trying to keep it down and put it out," he said.

The flames burned through the Dunhams' roof, spreading across the entire back side and

Keeping New Year's fitness resolutions strong all year

By Abigail Whitehouse
Staff Writer

It's February— the month that follows all of those New Year's fitness resolutions and for many, the month that marks falling off of the fitness wagon.

But for Casey Countians, there are still several community workout options to help keep those resolutions in tact and turn them into lifestyle changes.

In partnership with Casey County Community Education, certified instructor Janet Hansford is using a popular new technique called kettleBell AMPD to help Casey Countians shed some sweat and pounds.

What is a kettlebell?

A kettlebell is a cast-iron ball with a handle attached to the top. Kettlebells come in a variety of weights to match your fitness level but ten pounds is the average weight for beginners.

"It's a little hard to explain," Hansford said laughing. "It's a choreographed routine set to music that is based around kettlebell exercises."

Kettlebell is not to be mistaken with a dancing class, she added. There's no dancing involved, only choreographed movement.

Still, the technique is one that can improve many areas of the body.

"It's a full body workout that increases your strength, stamina, and flexibility," Hansford said.

Jones Park Elementary's cafeteria transforms into a fitness room on Mondays and Thursday nights, as Janet Hansford's kettlebell AMPD class takes over. For $4 per class, Hansford promises a full body workout experience for anyone who joins.

"It encourages weight loss and muscle gain."

Kettlebells have been used for centuries as an athletic strength developing technique and is still a prevalent source of exercise today.

"Kettlebell targets different muscles and muscle groups," Hansford said. "That's what makes it a whole body workout, from head to toe."

Each exercise is targeted for two or three different body areas, she added, whereas normal exercise would target only one area. A typical set up with a kettlebell works your shoulders, chest, and abdominal muscles.

By the end of it, after 30 to 45 minutes of kettlebell exercise, Hansford said participants

Danville man charged with kidnapping

By Larry Rowell
Editor

A Danville man is in the Casey County Detention Center facing a series of charges including the kidnapping of a 13-year-old Casey County teen.

Robert C. Caldwell, 25, of 95 Ky. 1273, was arrested on Jan. 27 on South U.S. 27 in Lincoln County after leading officers on a chase in a stolen vehicle, according to the arrest citation.

Caldwell faces charges of kidnapping, first-degree robbery, theft by unlawful taking, auto; first-degree fleeing or evading police in a motor vehicle, and first-degree criminal mischief.

Caldwell's escapade began on Jan. 22 when he and another man carjacked and kidnapped a man in the Kansas City, Mo. area. The man later managed to escape and Caldwell then made his way to Bardstown, where he wrecked the vehicle, according to a press release from the FBI.

On the lam until Jan. 27, Caldwell stole a second vehicle, which he abandoned in a Pulaski County field.

Making his way to Casey County, Caldwell appeared about 1:30 p.m. that same day behind a house belonging to the Martha Comegys family on Turkey Creek Road.

Comegys said that because school had been cancelled, she was at home with her 13-year old son, Eric, and two daughters.

"We had been outside just after lunch time to fix up cages for rabbits. He (the son) had gone to take fresh bedding to the dog," she said.

As Eric headed back to the house, Caldwell, armed with a rifle, approached the teen and asked for keys to a van that was parked at the house.

Steering the boy toward the house, the boy told Caldwell that he would get the keys to a 2005 Jeep Wrangler.

Fiscal court strikes deal with Lincoln Animal Shelter

By Larry Rowell
Editor

Casey County's stray animals will now be taken to an animal shelter in Lincoln County.

Previously housed at the Green River Animal Shelter in Adair County, Casey County Judge-Executive Randy Dial was notified recently by Adair Fiscal Court that they would no longer accept animals from Casey County due to "renovations and restructuring" at the center, said Adair Deputy Judge Holly Grimsley.

Dial made the recommendation to accept the agreement with Lincoln County on Monday during the regular meeting.

"I went up and toured the facility. It's very nice, it's very clean. They've got a very high adoption rate," Dial said.

‘More I’m around some people, the more I like my dog’

Czechoslovakian writer Milan Kundera once said, “Dogs are our link to paradise. They don’t know evil or jealousy or discontent. To sit with a dog on a glorious afternoon is to be back in Eden, where doing nothing was not boring – it was peace.”

I’ve told you before how much I love my dogs, but this quote puts it to words quite perfectly for me.

On Sunday my boyfriend and I loaded up the pups and took off to town – nothing out of the norm.

But when I looked through the window at Goliath, my 150 pound Rhodesian Ridgeback, I noticed something was off. His pupils were completely dilated.

Panic. I thought, “What if he is having a stroke? But he’s only 6 years old!” and then, “Maybe it’s just the lighting?”

We got home and I realized my worst nightmare was coming true. Goliath started bumping into walls and by the time I called our local vet, Devin Carlton, he couldn’t see anything and I was leading him with the sound of my voice.

I know for many people it’s hard to understand how or why someone would get so emotionally and physically ill over a dog, but for a week now I’ve lost countless hours of sleep and put everything that I could on hold to take care of him.

In my desperate quest to find answers and fix whatever was wrong, I managed to rack up $2,000 in vet bills, ruling out one thing after another. On Friday, the neurologist found no infection in Goliath’s spinal tissue and told me she believed he had a brain tumor.

I did the only thing I knew to do – call my daddy. And I bawled like a baby. As soon as we got off the phone, he called our life-long friend and equine vet, a man my father has always called when the answers are hidden.

And he asked my dad the one question no one had asked me yet, “Could Goliath have taken a blow to the head?”

Just like that, a memory was triggered. Dad and I recalled standing outside of the barn Sunday afternoon when our mischievous jack russell Mr. Jiggs leaped at Goliath, causing Goliath to hit his head hard on the trailer hitch attached to our four-wheeler.

And suddenly everything made perfect sense. It wasn’t two hours after he hit his head, Goliath’s symptoms began to show.

It’s a new week and Goliath’s vision has come racing back. He’s eating, sleeping, and even playing.

Do I regret all of the tests and the debt that I incurred?

No. All of that is completely wiped away when I walk through my living room and see Goliath staring up at me, seeing me, and wagging his tail.

Do kids need cell phones in school?

The Kentucky Standard, our sister newspaper in Bardstown, carried a story recently about a school principal banning cell phone usage in the school.

Jim Beavers, principal of Bloomfield Middle School, informed parents and students via the school’s Facebook page that as of Jan. 14, students’ use of cell phones was no longer permitted.

“We can no longer monitor the many ways that students can message, send pictures, etc.,” Beavers wrote. “This factor, along with the potential for unsafe and unhealthy dialogue — up to and including bullying and harassment of our students — encourages my decision to eliminate this convenient, but unnecessary, perk.”

I’m torn both ways on the issue, mainly because I have no idea what teachers deal with on a daily basis, and how the phones can be used to enhance learning.

On one hand, it’s way

Larry
Editor

beyond cool to have a hand held, pocket-sized computer at your fingertips. And, there are all kinds of educational apps out there that can enhance learning.

The first computer I had access to in college in 1977 was the size of a Buick.

It had no monitor but punched out cards that had to be fed into another machine and it took hours to do anything.

I do not long for the good old days in this aspect. I love my iPhone and use it in all kinds of ways from reading free books downloaded through my Casey County Public Library membership to surfing the Internet.

Cookbooks, who needs them? There are millions of recipes online. Sports scores, watching TV, movies, Ebay, you name it.

I am especially grateful for Google maps, which directs me when I’m in the car in unfamiliar territory in the state or country. And, Google maps keeps me from having to stop and ask for directions, which men just don’t do.

As for use during school hours, should a student need to contact a parent about an after school activity or sport that’s been canceled, that’s important, especially if the student depends on the parent for a way home from school.

In addition, teachers could direct students to educational apps or to a Google search for a particular question. The possibilities are endless.

However, it’s understandable that Beavers would want students to concentrate on learning and not on cyber-bullying, whereby students use their phones, and cameras in the phones, for purposes of bullying and harassing fellow students.

Additionally, students sometimes use the phones to take photos of intimate body parts and then send them in text messages or put them on Instagram, an online photo sharing site.

Some young people use the acronym “GNOC” in phone messages for “get naked on camera,” and that flabbergasts me, because once a photo is out there on the Internet, it’s there forever, even if it was only sent to one person.

If school officials learn of cyber bullying, they’ll deal with it.

I also think that parents should be aware of what their kids are doing on their phones and talk to them about being respectful and not using their phones to hurt others.

Working together, school officials and parents can harness the power of today’s cyberworld to make their kids and students become better citizens.

Happy birthday, Tom

WELLS
Columnist

Happy belated birthday to the man of my dreams, Tom Selleck, who was 70 years old on Jan. 29. What a man! So what if he’s 70? He still floats my boat.

Okay, get off my case. I don’t want to hear any snarky remarks. I might be older than dirt but I still appreciate a fine-looking man and Tom Selleck is a fine-looking man.

That man has floated my boat since I saw him the first time in a toothpaste commercial years ago. I don’t even remember what the toothpaste was but I wanted that beautiful man doing the commercial. I had no idea who he was but it wasn’t long until the world discovered him.

That man floated my boat when his show, “Magnum, P.I.” came on in 1980. He was funny, he was serious, he was a con artist who never had any money, and he was beautiful. I remember going to work the day after every show was on and discussing him (not the show) with my female co-workers. I didn’t stand a chance because all of them wanted him, too. It was a sad day in 1988 when Magnum made his last run in that gorgeous red Ferrari that didn’t even belong to him.

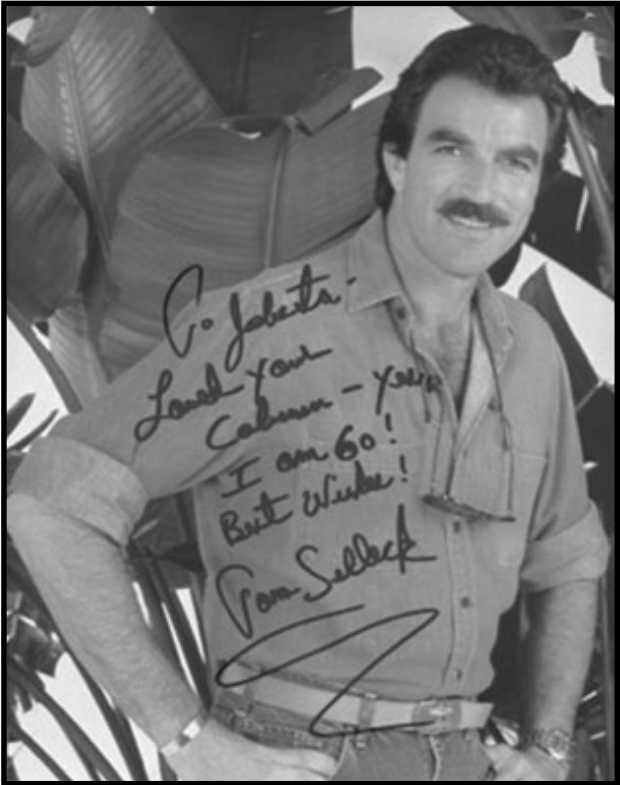

That man floated my boat in his western movies such as “Quigley Down Under,” which I’ve only seen about 50 times, “Monte Walsh,” and “The Shadow Riders.”

He was exceptional in a serious drama, although without his trademark mustache, in “Ike: Countdown to D-Day.” (It’s a shame Ike didn’t have a mustache.) Then along came “Three Men and a Baby” and “Three Men and a Little Lady.” Oh, yummy! I’ve seen each of those numerous times, too.

That man has floated my boat in the more-recent Jesse Stone movies that were made for television. There have been eight of them so far and I’m hoping for more. He looks older than he did as Magnum (but so do I) and his face has acquired character along with a few wrinkles. He looks wonderful — all rugged and tough and extremely cuddly. You can get these movies on Netflix. I have. I’ve watched all of them numerous times.

That man floats my boat every week on Friday nights when “Blue Bloods” is on. By the way, re-runs are on in the afternoons, too. I watch them. Let’s face it; I am a Tom Selleck junkie.

Ten years ago when Tom had his 60th birthday I asked everyone to send him a birthday card. I even found his mailing address. Well, the ladies who worked at Farmers Deposit Bank took it one step further. They gathered up all the items the bank gave to customers (caps, pens, mugs, calendars, and such), boxed them up with birthday cards, and a copy of my column, and mailed it all to him.

Just a few weeks later each and every lady got a personalized and signed photograph from this lovely man. What a hoot! What’s a bigger hoot, although not totally unexpected, is that I still have my picture. Oh, that man does float my boat!

Coffman kicking up heels for cancer clinic at UK Hospital

By Larry Rowell
Editor

To say that Sarah Coffman has a heart for children and their families battling cancer is an understatement. So much so in fact, she danced last year for 24 hours in a marathon with more than 800 other University of Kentucky students with DanceBlue, an organization that raises funds for the DanceBlue Hematology/Oncology Clinic at UK Children's Hospital in Lexington.

Coffman, daughter of Ken and Teena Coffman, and a sophomore at UK, is captain of the Honors Program Team where she organized fund raising efforts and encouraged new members to raise as much money as possible.

"Our team's goal last year was around $6,000 and we had about 16 people dance in the marathon last year," Coffman said, adding she personally raised $882 through T-shirt sales, among others.

During the past decade, DanceBlue has raised more than $6 million for the children's clinic.

According to the DanceBlue.org Website, funds raised are divided among patient experience, access to care, and cancer research.

This year's dance marathon will be on Valentine's Day at Memorial Coliseum and will host an estimated 1,000 dancers from more than 60 teams for the grueling event. How many dancers each team has is proportional to how much money they raised during the year, earning spirit points, she said.

"We have meal breaks every four hours but you're on your feet constantly — you don't get to sit down at all," she said.

To liven things up, each team has a spirit leader offering encouragement to dancers.

For Coffman, the marathon is just one part of her team's year-long fundraising efforts to help kids battling cancer.

"We get to meet with our family that we adopted during the year and we stay in touch with them. We have a little girl from London that we sponsored this year. She has cancer and was treated at UK."

Coffman and her team stay in touch with the girl, whose cancer is in remission.

"We're making her a book with notes and pictures from our team," she said.

The clinic has also helped kids from Casey County with cancer treatments.

Noah Laman, a Casey County High School student who has successfully battled cancer, was treated at the DanceBlue Clinic, said Guy Laman, Noah's father.

Still, Coffman said DanceBlue is the highlight of her college experience.

"You can't put a value on that. This is definitely the best

Pregnancy support center serving Casey County area residents

By Larry Rowell
Editor

Women in Casey County who discover they're pregnant and needing help can find support of several different kinds in Russell Springs.

The ARC Pregnancy Support Center serves Adair, Russell, and Casey counties, said Geraldine Johnson, director of the center.

"ARC is a private, nonprofit organization created in 2002 for the purpose of affirming the sanctity of life and is committed to presenting the gospel of Jesus Christ in both word and deed to women with crisis pregnancies," the center's mission statement states.

Johnson said that the aim of ARC is to promote the welfare and protection of unborn children through providing care and assistance in a confidential manner free of charge to expectant mothers, without regard to race, age, religion, or socio-economic status.

Additionally, the center exists to promote public awareness of the sanctity of human life in the context of a Christian witness.

To that end, Johnson said that the center offers several programs to assist women in crisis.

"When they have a positive pregnancy test, we have a small gift that we give them to emphasize to them it's a baby gift — to put in their mind it's a child," she said.

Last year, the center served 568 clients, gave 32 pregnancy tests, held Bible studies for 141 patients, handed out 12 Bibles, and saw 232 of those clients attend parenting classes.

The center also has a "Baby

Bucks" program where mothers attending classes can earn points to make purchases in the store at the center.

Expectant mothers can find baby clothing, diapers, formula, baby wipes, bedding, and toys, as well as cribs, changing tables, high chairs, and bassinets.

During the month of February, ARC is partnering with the Child Care Council of Kentucky to provide free car seats.

"They deal directly with the manufacturer and buy the seats at cost. Because we can buy them at cost, we can provide them more seats," Johnson said.

To get a car seat, parents have to watch a video on car seat safety and complete a worksheet. They are also required to have a car seat technician inspect the installation.

"We not only want to give them a car seat, we want to educate them at the same time," Johnson said.

Johnson said that the center also has furniture, children's clothing up to size 4 as well as adult clothing, all in an effort to meet the needs of the entire family.

Relying totally on financial and material donations, Johnson said that 10 area churches and community businesses support the center and its ministries.

Typical items donated are baby lotions, shampoos, and oils, size 5 and 6 diapers, crib sheets, blankets and quilts of all sizes, baby furniture, and maternity clothing, among others.

Johnson is available to speak to churches or other groups about the center's ministry.

For more information about ARC and its programs, contact Johnson at 1064 West Steve Wariner Drive in Russell Springs or call 270-866-2377.

ARC is open Monday-Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Savvy Senior: What Medicare doesn't cover

Dear Savvy Senior,

I'm about to sign up for Medicare Part A and B and would like to find out what they don't cover so I can avoid any unexpected costs down the road.

Almost 65

Dear Almost,

While Medicare covers a wide array of health care services, it certainly doesn't cover everything. If you need or want certain services that aren't covered, you'll have to pay for them yourself unless you have other insurance or you're in a Medicare Advantage health plan, which may cover some of these services. Here's a rundown of what original Medicare generally does not cover.

■ Alternative medicine: This includes acupuncture or chiropractic services (except to fix subluxation of the spine), and other types of alternative or complementary care.

■ Cosmetic surgery: Elective cosmetic procedures are not covered, however, certain surgeries may be if necessary to fix a malformation. For example, breast prostheses are covered if you had a mastectomy due to breast cancer.

■ Long-term care: This includes nursing home care, the costs of assisted living facilities and adult day care. Medicare does, however, help pay up to 100 days of skilled nursing or rehabilitation care immediately following a three-day inpatient hospital stay.

■ Personal care: The cost of hiring help for bathing, toileting and dressing are not covered unless you are homebound and are also receiving skilled nursing care. Housekeeping services, such as shopping, meal preparation and cleaning, are not covered either unless you are receiving hospice care.

■ Routine dental and vision care: Medicare will not cover routine dental check-ups, cleanings, fillings or dentures. Nor do they cover routine vision care like eye exams, eye refractions, contact lenses or eyeglasses – except when following cataract surgery.

■ Hearing: Routine hearing exams and hearing aids are not covered either, although some hearing implants to treat a severe hearing loss may be covered.

■ Foot care: Medicare does not cover most routine foot care, like the cutting or removing of corns and calluses, nor does it pay for most orthopedic shoes or other foot supports (orthotics). Medicare will, however, cover foot injuries or diseases like hammertoes, bunion deformities and heel spurs, along with foot exams and treatments if you have diabetes-related nerve damage.

■ Non-emergency services: Medicare does not pay for copies of X-rays or most non-emergency transportation including ambulance services.

■ Overseas coverage: In most cases, health care you receive outside of the United States is not covered.

The best way to find out if Medicare covers what you need is to talk to your doctor or other health care provider. Or, visit medicare.gov coverage and type in your test, item or service, to get a breakdown of what is and isn't covered.

Also keep in mind that even if Medicare covers a service or item, they don't usually pay 100 percent of the cost. Unless you have supplemental insurance, you'll have to pay monthly premiums as well as annual deductibles and copayments. Most preventive services, however, are covered by original Medicare with no copays or deductibles.

For more information on what original Medicare does and doesn't cover, see the "Medicare and You" 2015 booklet that you should receive in the mail a few months before you turn 65, or you can see it online at medicare.gov/pubs/pdf/10050.pdf.

You can also get help over the phone by calling Medicare at 800-633-4227, or contact your State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP), who provides free one-on-one Medicare counseling in person or over the phone. To find a local SHIP counselor visit ship-talk.org, or call the eldercare locator at 800-677-1116. If you enroll in a Medicare Advantage plan, you'll need to contact your plan administrator for details.

NEWS FROM AROUND Kentucky

Lincoln Fiscal Court using iPads

The Interior Journal

Lincoln County Fiscal Court has gone digital in an effort to provide magistrates with more information sooner and save on paper costs.

All four magistrates and Lincoln County Attorney Daryl Day now use county-provided iPads during fiscal court meetings. Judge-Executive Jim Adams uses his personal iPad to access documents as well.

The five iPads were purchased for a total of about $2,160 in September, Treasurer Lee Ann Smith said.

The tablet computers have been phased in over the past five months. Magistrate David Faulkner was the first "guinea pig," as Adams called it.

When connected to the Internet, the iPads can show magistrates documents as they are being prepared for upcoming meetings, eliminating the need for magistrates to travel to Stanford and pick up document packets ahead of time, Adams said.

Officials have estimated that using the iPads could save as many as 7,000 sheets of paper a year.

Missy's Out of the Way Café is robbed

The Lebanon Enterprise

One of Marion County's most popular restaurants, Missy's Out of the Way Café, was robbed Jan. 31, and the owner is offering a $500 reward for information leading to an arrest and conviction of the person or people responsible. The restaurant is located at 880 Horseshoe Bend Road in Raywick.

According to the restaurant owner, Missy Luckett, the robbery occurred between midnight and 6 a.m. The person or people responsible broke into the restaurant, cut the cord of the cash register and stole the cash that was inside. Luckett added that Friday night was one of the busiest nights she's had this winter, and she hopes her $500 reward will encourage someone to talk to police.

If you have any information about this robbery, call the Marion County Sheriff's Department at 270-692-3051 or the Lebanon Police Department's tip line at 270-692-5529.

Kentucky now taking online gun-permit applications

Louisville Courier-Journal

Kentucky gun owners can obtain concealed-carry permits faster under a new on-line application process that critics view as dangerous but others say pays heed to Second Amendment rights.

The process requires state police to either issue or deny a license within 15 days of receiving an electronic application — down from the 60-day processing period allowed for paper applications.

Supporters, including the National Rifle Association, say the change improves access to concealed-carry permits at a time when demand is high. Kentucky issued more than 59,500 permits in 2013, compared to 10,900 in 2004.

"If we can get these applications processed and back to people in two weeks, instead of two months, that is better for everyone," said Sara Beth Gregory, a former Republican state senator and key proponent of the change.

But critics say it's yet another bow to Kentucky gun culture that endangers the community and invites more opportunities for violence.

Rep. Jim Wayne, a Louisville Democrat opposed to the new rules, says state police are already hurting for personnel and that having officials process applications within 15 days could result in mistakes, such as approving permits for people with criminal histories.

"They are so overloaded and they should have the leeway to not be pressed to get this job done," he said.

The state police department, which began accepting applications electronically in mid-November, answered questions about the process in an email to The Courier-Journal.

Officials said the transition has been smooth and that several hundred people have used it to apply for new permits or renew old permits. They reported no problems meeting the 15-day deadline or performing criminal background checks, which are required for licenses.

To obtain a permit, applicants still must complete an in-person training course on Kentucky law and the basics of firearm safety. They also must pass the background check and need a valid e-mail address to register an account.

Zoo founder recovering after being bitten by rattlesnake

Lexington Herald-Leader

The founder of the Kentucky Reptile Zoo was hospitalized after being bitten by a rattlesnake.

Jim Harrison, director of the Powell County facility, was extracting venom from a South American snake last week when it broke a restraining tube and bit his left wrist.

"Those guys have a big fat body and a little tiny head," said Kristen Wiley, the zoo's curator. "It actually thrashed around enough that it broke the tube."

Without quick treatment, Harrison could have died, she said.

"This particular kind of snake has a high neurotoxin in its venom," which caused Harrison, 56, to have difficulty breathing, Wiley said.

"He was in very bad shape," she said.

He was taken by ambulance to Clark Regional Medical Center, where he got a first dose of the anti-venom serum that the zoo keeps on hand for such instances, Wiley said. He was transferred to University of Kentucky Chandler Hospital, where he was listed in fair condition late Saturday afternoon. Wiley said Harrison, who has been bitten nine times in more than 35 years of working with poisonous snakes, is expected to make a full recovery.

The snake that bit him is fine too, she said.

Wiley said the nonprofit zoo, which is in Slade, near Natural Bridge State Park, extracts the venom and sells it for cancer research as a means of supporting the facility.

How to have a healthier heart

By Jennifer S. Overstreet, A.P.R.N.

February is observed nationwide as American Heart Month, which is a good time to increase awareness of the simple steps that individuals can take to have a healthier heart. Having a healthy heart is an important lifestyle choice, as coronary heart disease is the leading cause of death in the United States. The American Heart Association recommends the following steps to have a healthier heart:

Don't smoke cigarettes or use other tobacco products. Individuals should also avoid exposure to other people's smoke.

Have your blood pressure checked regularly. High blood pressure is defined as two or more readings of 140/90 mm Hg or higher. Individuals with normal blood pressure should have it checked at least every two years. If you have high blood pressure, follow your health care provider's advice on how often to have it checked.

Eat foods low in saturated fats and cholesterol. Your intake of saturated fat should be less than 8 percent to 10 percent of your total calories. Have your cholesterol checked by a health care professional every five years. For optimal health, your cholesterol level should be under 200.

Stay physically active. Your heart will benefit from 30 to 60 minutes of vigorous physical activity three to four times per week. Even moderate activities for 30 minutes on most days of the week will help your heart.

Maintain proper weight. Too much fat, especially around the waist, puts you at higher risk for health problems. Women with a waistline of 35 inches or more or men with a waistline of 40 inches or more are at an increased risk.

Have regular medical checkups. Your health care professional can best advise you on how often you need to have a checkup. Individuals with diabetes or other medical problems need to be seen more often.

While making lifestyle choices for a healthier heart, it's also important to know the warning signs of a heart attack. Those include chest discomfort lasting more than a few minutes, discomfort in other areas of the upper body, shortness of breath, breaking out in a cold sweat, nausea or lightheadedness. Individuals experiencing these symptoms should call 911 or go to a hospital immediately.

Kleffman honored for founding youth basketball league

By Larry Rowell
Editor

A longtime resident of Casey County was recently honored by the Liberty-Casey County Chamber of Commerce for taking the initiative in starting a youth basketball league in the county.

Ken Kleffman was presented a Community Spirit Award by Rachyl Cundiff during the Jan. 28 meeting at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center.

“Phillip Williams approached Ken and told him in order to have a good high school basketball team he had to start with the youth. Ken researched other youth programs in the state and beyond. In 1982, Casey County Community Basketball was born and two years later, he added the Junior Pro League,” Cundiff said, in presenting the award.

Kleffman led the league for seven years, with kids playing every Saturday morning during the season from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., in gyms at Casey County High School, Douglas, Liberty, Garrett, Phillips, Phelps, and Middleburg Elementary schools.

Cundiff also attributed the success of the 1993 CCHS girl’s basketball team in playing in the state Sweet 16 tournament to Kleffman.

Cundiff said that Kleffman established a vision and mission that allowed kids in the league to “have fun and make memories that will last a lifetime.”

In accepting the award, Kleffman described some of the experiences he had in heading up the league.

“Coming from Chicago, snow was never a particular concern for us and so one of the things I determined was that we weren’t going to cancel any Saturday games. And I think that through those seven years we may have given in one time,” he said.

In addition, Kleffman said that he insisted that boys and girls play together, and, against each other.

“One year Richard (Montgomery, a coach in the league) took a team and his daughter Erica, and they competed against other AAU programs in the state and some coaches said to me, ‘what do you do to get these girls to play as tough and as rough as they do.” I said one of the things we do is we have them play against boys all the time,” Kleffman said.

That team won the state AAU championship and went on to compete for a national title in Knoxville, Tenn., earning a fourth place finish.

As for the games played each Saturday, Kleffman said that the rules dictated that each player had to sit out one quarter.

“If you were depending on the star system, you were in trouble,” he said.

Additionally, during possession changes, a shot couldn’t be taken until three players touched the ball.

“They learned to pass, catch, they learned to dribble, but more than anything else, they learned teamwork,” he said.

Summing up, Kleffman quoted lines from a Grateful Dead song.

“Sometimes the light shines brightly on me, sometimes it’s so dark I can hardly see, but just here lately it occurred to me, what a long strange trip it’s been.”

“I want you to know we loved it and during that Pee Wee program it was one of those times when the light was shining brightly,” he said.

The 2014 Amateur High Points Horse of the Year in barrel racing and pole bending was awarded to Mary Armstrong and her mare, “A Smashed Dinky,” also known as Lucy. Here, Armstrong and Lucy wrap around a barrel at a show held at the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center.

Hustonville woman and her horse win KQHA honor

By Abigail Whitehouse
Staff Writer

Mary Armstrong started riding horses as soon as her 4-year-old legs would let her. By the age of seven, she was entering the show ring and competing in western pleasure classes – classes which she said were just too slow for her taste.

“The last time I entered a western pleasure class my horse wanted to go faster, so I let him,” Armstrong said laughing. “We didn’t place and when I came out of the class my dad said he thought I better try the speed classes.”

That’s exactly what Armstrong did when she traded the slow western pleasure pace for the speed-driven world of barrel racing and pole bending.

“I had to train my first quarter horse myself,” she said. “Neither of us knew what we were doing so we figured it out together.

Now, at 34, Armstrong and her horse “A Smashed Dinky,” also known as Lucy, have captured the Kentucky Quarter Horse Association’s 2014 Amateur High Points Horse of the Year Award, in both barrel racing and pole bending.

“It’s the first time I’ve won that so I was excited. It’s a national award so it’s pretty sought after,” Armstrong said.

The year-end High Point Awards are given to competitors who have earned the most points in their specific divisions throughout one year.

Beginning on Oct. 1 of each year and carrying through to Sept. 30 of the following year, any points earned in KyQHA-approved classes are counted towards the high points awards, given in December of that year.

A great deal of those points were earned at Armstrong’s favorite show venue, Liberty’s Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center, which isn’t too far down the road from her home in Hustonville.

“I love showing in Liberty,” she said. “It’s one of the best facilities you can find anywhere.”

High Points Horse of the Year isn’t the only award Armstrong and Lucy have earned – continuing their success, the pair captured a top 10 spot in amateur pole bending, at the world’s largest single breed horse show in October. The All American Quarter Horse Congress attracts thousands of attendees to Columbus, Ohio, and brings the top contenders from across the U.S. together to compete.

In November, the duo traveled to Oklahoma City where they competed against the best of the best in the American Quarter Horse Association World Championship Show.

“I ended up in ninth place in the poles,” she said. “There were 30 in the class, so I was pretty tickled with that.”

There’s no doubt that Armstrong’s success in the show ring will continue, with decades of saddle-time under her belt.

Even one of her older horses, Duke, is still ripping and running and despite being 18, he picked up a win in Liberty at the National Barrel Horse Association Championship in September.

“Duke and I won the AQHA Amateur Barrel Class at the North American International Livestock Exposition,” Armstrong said.

There’s no doubt that Armstrong will continue to rack up the points for the 2015 year and if it’s up to her, she’ll be able to do most of that right here in Liberty.

Screening shows 51 percent of state’s kindergarteners not prepared

How Casey County is closing the gaps on early childhood education

By Abigail Whitehouse
Staff Writer

The glass can either be half empty or half full, depending on how it’s perceived – and the same can be said for Kentucky kindergartners, half of which were prepared to start kindergarten in fall of 2014, and half of which were not.

Based on the results found in a statewide readiness screening, 51 percent of Kentucky students were not prepared to start Kindergarten last fall.

Barry Lee, Director of Special Education and Pre-school Services, said there was a slight improvement in readiness last year for Casey County kindergartners, but there is still work left to be done.

Closing the gap in Casey

In an effort to close the gap, the Casey County School District is striving to get the word out to parents about what is expected of students preparing to enter kindergarten.

One such effort is the Born Learning Academy, a public campaign aimed at helping parents, childcare givers, and communities learn about the opportunities available for young children.

“Overall in 2013, 61.3 percent were considered not ready for kindergarten in our community and 36.9 percent were considered ready,” Lee said.

A little improvement was seen in 2014, with the percentage of students who were not ready decreasing to 60.3 and the number of students prepared increasing to 39.7 percent.

“Statewide, you’re looking at 50-50, but looking at our

Born Learning Academy

The next Born Learning Academy workshop is scheduled for Feb. 10 at Walnut Hill Elementary from 5-6:30 p.m. and Feb. 12 at Jones Park Elementary from 5-6:30 p.m. Born Learning is a public engagement campaign helping parents, caregivers and communities create early learning opportunities for young children. The program is designed to support parents in their critical role as a child’s first teacher. Food and childcare will be provided. Call Jennifer Godbey for JPE, 606-787-7985 or Shelly Wesley for WHE, 606-787-0045 if you plan on attending.

community we do have some concerns and things that need to be addressed,” Lee said.

Efforts to increase kindergarten readiness across Casey County are numerous but, Lee added, a lot of it comes down to getting the word out about what is expected of incoming kindergarteners and how parents can make sure their child is ready.

“During the Apple Festival we had a booth where parents who made a pledge to read to their children for 20 minutes a day received a free book,” Lee said. “You would be surprised how many individuals said to me, ‘I didn’t know students needed to know these (things) prior to school starting.’ There’s just a misconception that knowledge doesn’t begin before school starts.”

Parents can turn basic, everyday tasks into learning opportunities for their children.

“Every moment is a teaching moment,” Lee said. “If you’re doing laundry – instead of just throwing it in the washing machine, parents can teach kids how to separate it into colors. We get so busy in our every day life that we forget.”

Children entering kindergarten are expected to have a certain breadth of knowledge when they enter elementary school doors for the first time. For example, they should be able to count from 1 to 30, state their ABC’s without singing, identify body parts, know and print their first and last name, sort objects, differentiate size, and match quantities.

“This is a starting point for teachers to say, ‘I’m going to meet the child here and move forward,’” Lee said.

Lee added that a lot of factors come into play with early childhood education, like disabilities.

“But a lot of these students can do so much more and once they’re in kindergarten, these students are picking up and by first grade they are up to the normal level,” he said. “A lot just comes from being in that organized setting with the expectation of learning.”

Early childhood workshops for parents

The Casey County Early Childhood Council has added several programs to help educate parents on what their children are expected to know and how they can help make sure they’re ready.

The United Way Born Learning Academy is a series of six free workshops available to Casey County parents and/or guardians at Jones Park Elementary and Walnut Hill Elementary.

“One of the things we wanted to do was get the community involved,” said Walnut Hill’s Family Resource Center Coordinator Shelly Wesley. “It’s an early childhood education for parents who have children aging from pre-natal to five, but not in kindergarten yet.”

Each workshop provides dinner for families before the learning sessions begin.

The six sessions cover topics such as healthcare, nutrition, and sleep, as well as how children learn, brain development, ages, and stages. Parents will also learn ways to make reading fun and how to connect with children through songs and games.

“Our fourth workshop is coming up next week,” Wesley said, “but you can jump right in.”

With two sessions left to go and a graduation ceremony planned, there is still time for Casey County parents and caregivers to join the workshops. The next Born Learning Academy workshop is Tuesday, Feb. 10 at WHE and Thursday, Feb. 12 at JPE.

For more information call Jennifer Godbey for JPE at (606) 787-7985 or Shelly Wesley for WHE at (606) 787-0045.

Kidnapping

“He made him get in. He never pointed the gun at my son but he said he felt like he was in danger if he didn’t listen,” she said.

With Eric in the car, Caldwell began crisscrossing roads in the South Fork area, even asking the teen for directions.

“Don’t do anything stupid, I wouldn’t want to hurt you,” Comegys said Caldwell told her son.

Caldwell released the teen unharmed on Ky. 910 near Discount Foods, where he used the telephone to phone a friend who returned him home.

Comegys said that her son has taken the approximately 30-minute ordeal in stride.

“He has taken it very well. He remained calm throughout all of it. I’m very proud of him. I just praise God that He protected him and kept him calm and he thought quickly,” she said.

Just after releasing the teen, Caldwell was driving on Thomas Ridge Road toward Dunnville when he crossed the centerline and side-swiped an oncoming unmarked KSP vehicle with two detectives inside. The detectives chased the vehicle but eventually lost contact with it.

Trooper Kevin Roberts then picked up the chase on Thomas Ridge Road where Caldwell went off road, causing damages to the police cruiser in a field.

According to a KSP press release, the vehicle Caldwell was driving was located after several hours and a second pursuit ensued and ended in Lincoln County across from Lincoln County High School where Caldwell was arrested about 3:30 p.m. without incident by the Lincoln County Sheriff’s Office.

Caldwell is lodged in the Casey County Jail on a $1 million cash bond.

Preliminary hearing

Caldwell was in Casey County District Court yesterday for a preliminary hearing before Judge Michael Loy.

County Attorney Tommy Weddle called two witnesses, Trooper Kevin Roberts and KSP Detective Jamie Richard, who interviewed Caldwell in Lincoln County after he had been arrested.

Roberts testified basically the same details he included in an arrest citation, that he pursued Caldwell in the Jeep for about three miles and then lost contact with the car in a field.

Richard testified that Caldwell, after approaching Eric in the yard, asked him to go with him.

“He told him he wanted him to go because he didn’t know the area,” Richard said, adding that Eric’s testimony reflects what Caldwell said, that he asked Eric to get in the Jeep.

“He never said that Caldwell threatened him,” he said.

Richard also testified that Eric told him that he wanted to go into the house to get the keys to protect his mother and sisters.

“I was scared of what would happen if he went into the house,” Richard said Eric told him.

Shandra West-Stiles, the public defender representing Caldwell, argued that since Caldwell didn’t force the boy into the Jeep, there wasn’t probable cause for the kidnapping charge. She also disputed the robbery charge concerning the Jeep, questioning Richard’s testimony that the Jeep was valued at around $13,000.

However, Judge Loy said that there was probable cause to bind Caldwell to the Casey County grand jury which meets on Feb. 13.

Track Rebs get early jump on season in Wildcat Classic

Staff report

The Casey County Track Team began its first ever indoor season on Saturday with the Wildcat Classic at the University of Kentucky.

Coach Jon Vaughn is being joined this year by assistant coach Melissa Durham and volunteer coach Dave Smith. Coach Vaughn's father-in-law, who has worked with Olympic track athletes in sprints and endurance events, as well as field events, will also help as his schedule permits.

Brenna Hayes finished well in the shot put with a first of the year throw within about one foot of her best last year. Hayes is a returning eighth grader who qualified for state last year and won the varsity regional title in both the shot put and discus. In addition, Hayes won at the middle school state meet in the two events.

Noah Brown ran the 1600 and 800 meter races, finishing first in the 800, beating the number one runner in the state by almost five seconds. Brown is going into the season ranked second among all freshman in the state (all size schools).

Jenna Vaughn ran the 1600 and 800 meter runs with good finishes in both. In the 800, Vaughn's finish will now rank her as the second eighth grader, all size schools, in the state. Jenna qualified for varsity state last year in the 1600 meters as well as the 4x400 with fellow eighth grader Chelsea Elmore.

Elmore ran an excellent 400 meter and 200 meter run, proving that she can compete with some of the best high school sprinters in the state. Jenna Carman had an excellent start to the season as well as twins Haley and Hannah Lynn. Also joining the competition was freshman Harley Byrd.

Casey County will take about 25 athletes to Mason County on Saturday.

Chelsea Elmore, an eighth grader, gets set in the starting block at Saturday's meet at the indoor Wildcat Classic at the University of Kentucky. Elmore competed in the 200 and 400 meter races.

Lady Rebels defeat Russell on senior night, 64-57

By Abigail Whitehouse
Staff Writer

The Lady Rebels' defense paid off in a game against Garrard County on Jan. 26 but failed to rally a win over Southwestern three days later.

The last home game of the season was a sweet victory for Lady Rebel seniors Tiara Cochran, Christin Terry, and Lakken Miller, who rounded out their home season stats with a win over Russell County.

Garrard County

Coach Todd Claunch said Garrard County played hard and did not quit, but despite their efforts the Lady Rebels moved ahead to win, 63-51.

The win was largely due to Casey County's defensive game.

"Garrard was a much improved team," Claunch said. "We did good defensively (and we) won the boards."

LaShaya Carman made 10 of the Lady Rebels' 28 rebounds. As a team, Casey had 14 assists and 10 steals.

Cochran put up 18 points for Casey, shooting 78 percent from the floor.

Terry also scored 18 along with 8 rebounds and 5 steals.

Other scorers included: Miller, 9 points and 5 assists; Carman, 9 points and 10 rebounds; Gena Cravens, 5; Kyra Eads, 4 points and 5 assists.

Southwestern

The Lady Warriors managed to break Casey County's winning streak on Jan. 29, beating the Lady Rebels 64-48.

It was a tough match up for Casey and despite the loss, Claunch said the girls never gave up.

"This was the toughest game of the season," Claunch said. "We were pushed in every aspect of the game."

The Lady Rebels knocked down some tough shots, which Claunch said is what kept them in the game for up to around three minutes to go in the half.

"Southwestern took away the paint and got out in the shooters' face," he said. "We did not do a good job of seeing what they were giving us."

Finding the openings was difficult for the Lady Rebels, who hadn't yet faced a team with a structure like Southwestern.

"Add to it, the fact that they did not miss many shots from any range," Claunch said. "It was a tough matchup. Our ladies could have given in and let things get out of hand, but we kept battling."

Casey managed to get back within 12 points in the fourth quarter, after going out at the half with a 20 point deficit.

Miller and Carman both put 10 on the board for Casey, while Terry had 8 and Cochran had 6.

Other scoring players included Cravens, 6; Eads, 5; and Allison Dallman, 2.

Russell County

Seniors Terry, Cochran, and Miller played in their home gym for the last time on Tuesday and ended senior night in victory, beating Russell County 64-57.

"I know that the coaching staff and fans are sad to see them play their last game in that gym," Claunch said.

But that isn't the end of the road for the Lady Rebels, who still have several games left to play.

"Russell was a young, tough, well-coached team," Claunch said. "They forced us to make some defensive adjustments, which our girls did a good job of in the second half."

Good ball movement, being patient, knocking down some big shots, and finishing at the line is what Claunch said gave the Lady Rebels a good victory.

"We got some good minutes off the bench also," he said.

Casey managed a season low of only 6 turnovers and led the boards with 30 rebounds, 16 assists, and 10 steals.

Terry made 19 points, going 5 for 7 from the 3 point line and shooting 67 percent overall. Cochran had 11 points, 5 assists, 5 rebounds, 4 steals, and went 7 for 8 from the freethrow line.

"(Cochran) hit (her free throws) when we needed them most," Claunch said.

Miller had 5 assists, 3 steals, and put up 10 points, all while handling a tough defensive assignment.

Other scoring players included Carman, 7 points and 8 rebounds; Brenna Hayes, 100 percent on the floor with 7 points; Eads, 6 points and 5 rebounds; Cravens, 3; and Haley Southerland, 1.

The Lady Rebs (10-11) face a tough stretch of six road games to end the regular season.

However, the girls have a week off before facing Boyle County on Feb. 10, East Jessamine on Feb. 12, Mercer County on Feb. 14 and George Rogers Clark on Feb. 16.

On Feb. 17, the Lady Rebels play Thomas Nelson before closing out the regular season at Lincoln County on Feb. 20.

By far, the game at Mercer (19-3) will be the toughest test followed by Lincoln and East Jessamine, both with winning records.

The Lady Rebels secured another win for the season on Jan. 26, beating Garrard County 63-51. Here, Kyra Eads attempts to pass the ball under pressure from the Lady Lions.

Fiscal court

The agreement calls for Casey County to pay $30 per animal for a minimum of five days.

"Anything over that five day period will be at a cost of $6 per day. That will include water, shelter, and if needed be, euthanization and disposal," Dial said.

At the end of the meeting, Casey County resident Terri Simpson asked Dial what happens to the animals after five days.

"Do you have to pay them or are they willing to keep them if they can find rescue or they're an adoptable animal," Simpson said.

Dial told Simpson that Lincoln County makes every effort to adopt the animals.

"They will keep them five days or anything over that that is agreeable with us," Dial said.

Simpson said it was her understanding that Green River kept many of Casey's dogs for longer than five days without billing Casey County.

In a previous interview, Dial said that Ricky Luttrell, Casey County's Animal Control Officer, took 35 cats and 252 dogs to GRAS in 2014.

Per the contract, Casey

County had been paying GRAS $8.80 for each animal per day, for a period of up to five days. That price included vaccinations, worming, food and water, euthanization and disposal. If the animals weren't adopted after five days, they were euthanized.

Simpson said that it's important for her to know that the dogs from Casey County will have a chance to go past that five day period.

Simpson also asked Dial if he knew what the euthanization rate was in Lincoln County at their shelter to which Dial said that he didn't know, but understood the adoption rate "is well above 50 percent."

David Snyder, the Animal Control officer for Lincoln County, said the adoption rate is "over 90 percent."

"We have a lot of people who work with rescue and getting the dogs adopted," Snyder said, adding that in the past year, the only dogs that have been euthanized were either sick, injured, or mean."

In other business, magistrates,

■ Approved the payment of $1,465.25 to former Coroner Tommy Clark for expenses incurred last year. These included $1,122.75 for a cell phone for Clark and a deputy coroner; motel expenses for coroner's training at $310.50; and $32 for body bags.

■ Also agreed to reimburse current Coroner Curt Demrow $618.23 for items Demrow had purchased prior to taking office on Jan. 5. These items include coroner's reports for $383.09 and $235.14 for business cards, envelopes, and letterheads. Although fiscal court wasn't legally obligated to pay for these items since they were purchased prior to Jan. 5, Dial said he made the recommendation for reimbursement as a "show of good faith" to give Demrow what he needs for the coroner's office.

■ Heard Dial say that the bridge being constructed on Fishing Creek Road should be completed by the first of next week and reopened to traffic.

■ Approved a contract to house prisoners from Madison County in the Casey County Detention Center at $30 per day.

■ Hired Ashley Garrett as a part-time dispatcher at E-911 Dispatch at $8.25 an hour.

Fitness

are sure to have a puddle of sweat.

"You don't have a choice but to benefit from it," she said. "If you're working out you have to tighten muscles up. And a lot of the moves are camouflaged so you don't even know you're working them."

Men and women of all fitness levels are welcome to join Hansford's kettlebell class, which she leads on Mondays and Thursdays at Jones Park Elementary from 6-6:30 p.m., as well as Tuesdays and Fridays at Walnut Hill from 6-6:45 p.m.

"I would recommend it to anyone. That's what's great about it – any fitness level or gender," Hansford said. "We've had a really good response so far."

The kettlebell class is a cardio, fat-burning routine, but for those who need to ease into the exercise, there are modifications of each move so there is no intensifying of sore joints or muscles.

The class is $4 per person or a punch card for 10 classes can be purchased for $30.

For first timers, Hansford has kettlebells and yoga mats and if anyone wants to become a regular, she can help find the right kettlebell to fit your fitness needs.

"The funniest quote I've heard so far is, 'If you want to find out how out of shape you really are, take a kettlebell class with Janet,'" she said laughing.

For more information call Janet Hansford at (606) 303-3614.

Morning and afternoon sessions are available and each session lasts 45 minutes. Saturday sessions are also available at 9 a.m. and 12 p.m. Attending three sessions a week is recommended. Any participants in boot camp also get zumba classes for free.

Fires

leaving the front partially destroyed.

"I didn't get home until about eleven o'clock that night," Harris said. "There was a whole lot of smoke and water damage but no injuries were reported."

Assisting on scene were fire responders from Southeast Casey, Dunsmville, Clemenstville, Brush Creek, and Poplar Springs Fire Departments.

South Ky. 501

Firefighters from Poplar Springs, Evona, Dunnville, and Liberty Fire Departments responded to a house fire near 5714 South Ky. 501 on Monday afternoon.

Evona firefighter Louis Shirk said that he was on the scene about nine minutes after the fire was reported to E-911 dispatch.

"The house was engulfed when I arrived," Shirk said.

The home, belonging to John and Mary Schrock and their five children, was a total loss.

Neighbor Titus Morris said that the fire started when a stack of wood, used to heat the water in a boiler on the back of the house, ignited.

Morris shook his head and added how he had helped build the Schrock's house the past summer.

"It is just amazing how quickly something you've built can be destroyed," Morris said.

No injuries were reported and firefighters managed to contain the fire and keep the flames from spreading to the barn next door.
